Image AC 4: View of Thornbury Castle from the north and showing the main gateway to the Outer Court and the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin in the background.

Image AC 5: View of Thornbury Castle looking north from within the town centre, here showing the experience of this early 16th century building complex from Castle Street.

Image AC 6: View of Thornbury Castle from the Public Footpath between Parkmill Farm and The Pithay looking south-east and depicting the relationship between this building complex and the mid-19th century Sheiling School (historically Thornbury Park) on the left-hand side.

Image AC 7: View of Thornbury Castle from the Public Footpath running south from Oldbury Lane and Parkmill Farm and showing the relationship between the castle and the adjacent parish church on the ridge of elevated ground from this approach.

Image AC 8: View of Thornbury Castle from The Pithay, here showing the approach up to the North Gate of the Outer Court which is flanked by a wall and a ditch which ultimately terminates in front of the gate.

Image AC 9: View looking north from the North Gate to the Outer Court of Thornbury Castle, with the well wooded designed landscape around Sheiling School on the right-hand side closing off views towards the appeal site.

Image AC 10: View looking north from within the North Range of the Inner Court at Thornbury Castle, this from one of the bedrooms on the first floor ('Mary Queen of Scots'), with the buildings of Sheiling School discernible through the trees on the right-hand side.

Image AC 11: View looking out north west from the window on the top floor of the SW Tower at Thornbury Castle ('Catherine of Aragon') and illustrating the focus on (1) the Outer Court, (2) Oldbury and the River Severn and (3) the rising ground on the opposite side in the far distance.

Image AC 12: View looking out from the stair window on the top floor of the south-west Tower at Thornbury Castle and here showing the experience looking north-east towards the appeal site in the distance, over the two storey North Range of the Inner Court and Sheiling School beyond.

Image AC 13: View of the Grade I listed Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin, looking north north-east from the north end of Castle Street.

Image AC 14: View looking south from beside the tower at the west end of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin and illustrating the enclosing nature of its churchyard.

Image AC 15: View from within the churchyard of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin and showing the close spatial and functional relationships between the Grade I listed Church and the buildings of the early 16th century Thornbury Castle in the background.

Image AC 16: View of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin from the south end of Castle Street and illustrating the inter-relationship between the Church and the historic medieval and later settlement adjacent.

Image AC 17: View of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin looking south-west from the play space beside Park Farm within the ongoing Park Farm residential development which stands immediately east of the appeal site.

Image AC 18: View of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin looking south from the south side of Oldbury Lane along the northern boundary of the appeal site, with the tower rising above the houses of the ongoing Park Farm development.

Image AC 19: View of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin looking north-west from the south-east corner of the appeal site and illustrating the 'typical' experience of this Grade I listed building in view of the intervening distance and woodland cover.

Image AC 20: View of the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin from the Public Open Space between the two areas of the adjacent Park Farm development.

Image AC 21: View south towards the Parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin from within the appeal site, from the field to the west of the existing SUDS basin.

Image AC 22: View of the main north-east facing elevation of Sheiling School (from the north-east). It was built in the mid-1830s as Thornbury Park by Henry Wenman Newman.

Image AC 23: View of the rear south-west facing elevation of Sheiling School (formerly Thornbury Park) looking north-eastwards.

Image AC 24: View of Sheiling School looking north along the entrance drive and showing the relationship of the ancillary ranges on the left to the main House in the background.

Image AC 25: View of the well wooded parkland landscape that immediately surrounds Sheiling School, taken looking north north-west from the Public Footpath that dog-legs from Park Street across to the school playing fields.

Image AC 26: View of Sheiling School looking south-east from the southern fringe of the appeal site and showing the topographic position of this late Georgian building within its well wooded, designed parkland setting.

Image AC 27: View looking west through the Public Open Space at the heart of the Park Farm development adjacent to the appeal site and showing the last remnants of one of the circular plantations positioned as ‘eye catchers’ by Henry Wenman Newman within the tertiary designed landscape to the north of Thornbury Park.

Image AC 28: View looking north-east from in front of the main elevation of Sheiling School and showing the proximity of the houses of the ongoing Park Farm development in the background, visible over the roofs of the outbuildings within the school grounds.

Image AC 29: View looking south-west from the entrance drive to Sheiling School and showing the form and character of the outbuildings within the immediate parkland setting to the school; originally built as Thornbury Park in the mid-1830s.

Image AC 30: View to the east from the Public Footpath as it exits the grounds of Sheiling School, showing the character of the asset's surroundings on this side, which comprises the buildings and playing fields of the Castle School.

Image AC 31: View towards Sheiling School (formerly Thornbury Park) from the south end of the appeal site and here showing the remnants of one of the circular tree plantations established by Henry Wenman Newman and now identifiable by the density of mistletoe in the remaining trees. The Public Footpath runs this side of the tree-fringed stream.

Image AC 32: View looking north-west to north from in front of the side (north-west) elevation of Sheiling School towards the appeal site in the middle distance and showing the screening effect of the tree plantations established by Henry Wenman Newman in the distance.

Image AC 33: View of the 'interior' of the Thornbury Conservation Area highlighting its character and appearance, here looking north along Castle Street from the historic town centre.

Image AC 34: View of the 'interior' of the Thornbury Conservation Area highlighting its character and appearance, here looking north east from the north end of High Street towards its junction with 'The Plain' on the right-hand side and Castle Street to the left.

Image AC 35: View of the 'interior' of the Thornbury Conservation Area highlighting its character and appearance, here looking north along High Street and illustrating the tightly packed street frontages and the scale of the buildings fronting the principal thoroughfares.

Image AC 36: View looking out west from the Thornbury Conservation Area showing its setting on this side, with the 'closes' forming the foreground and the agricultural fields stretching out towards the River Severn in the distance.

Image AC 37: View looking out south-west from the Thornbury Conservation Area showing its setting on this side, with the allotments and football club characterising the foreground at this principal southern entrance to and exit from the historic town centre.

Image AC 38: View looking north north-west from adjacent to the north-west corner of the Thornbury Conservation Area, along the Public Footpath connecting the Pithay with Parkmill Farm and beyond to Oldbury Lane, here showing the medieval parish church at Oldbury-on-Severn in its characteristic hilltop setting in the middle distance.

Image AC 39: View of Thornbury Conservation Area from the Public Footpath which crosses the southern end of the appeal site (taken in early November 2021) and here showing the experience and appreciation of the designated asset's significance at the northern end.
